Accountable care organizations and bundling initiatives are two key initiatives of the CMS Center for Medicare and Medicaid Innovation. New Jersey is an active participant in these initiatives with hospital and physician organizations taking the lead. However, post-acute providers, from rehabilitation hospitals to skilled nursing facilities to home health agencies, need to be engaged in the development of these efforts for them to be truly successful. It has become evident that a significant part of variation in Medicare spending is related to patterns of post-acute care utilization, in addition to readmissions to acute care. Attendees will hear firsthand from CMMI about the current and future initiatives being explored, who is participating, what patient populations are the focus and how CMMI views post-acute providers' role in this work. Two panels will delve into the day-to-day experiences of ACOs and bundling initiatives in New Jersey, with an emphasis on how they are working and plan to work with post-acute partners.

OBJECTIVES:

1. To understand the direction CMMI is taking with regard to ACOs and bundling
2. To explore how ACO and bundling demonstrations could affect future Medicare payment policy
3. To learn from providers engaged in ACOs about their priorities for post-acute care
4. To understand how the Model 2 bundling initiatives are structured.

TARGET AUDIENCE: Long-term care administrators, directors of nursing and all department managers, quality improvement coordinators, business office staff, MDS coordinators.
