OVERVIEW:

Essential to the success of today's nurse leaders and aspiring nurse leaders is the comprehensive understanding of the key characteristics that embody an effective leader and how the nurse leader leverages the elements that contribute to a healthy nurse work environment.

Improving the nursing work environment has become a worldwide issue and is a key goal of ONL NJ. An extensive body of evidence confirms the relationships among positive work environments, positive nurse outcomes of job satisfaction and retention and positive patient outcomes.

Many variables influence workplace environments and staffing resources such as financial management of staffing resources, succession planning, legislation for mandated staffing and research on staffing ratios. This education program will examine the American Association of Critical Care Nurses (AACN) Standards for Establishing and Sustaining Healthy Work Environments and the variables that go into supporting the model. The undertaking of improving hospital nursing work environments rests primarily with nurse leaders, aspiring nurse leaders and frontline staff, all of which support the work of the healthcare team and contribute to patient engagement.

Growing future nurse leaders is a long-term quest that requires both planning and action, as our emerging leaders will ultimately replace our current leaders and continue the very important work being done to improve nursing practice environments, and most importantly, patient outcomes. The leader role is influential in creating a professional environment and fostering a culture where interdisciplinary team members are able to contribute to optimal patient outcomes and grow professionally.

Join the Organization of Nurse Leaders of New Jersey as we explore the key characteristics of successful leaders and the vital elements that make for a healthy work environment.

LEARNER OUTCOME:

After successfully completing the course, the learner will have a deeper understanding of the role and characteristics of an effective nurse leader and will be able to identify two characteristics of an effective transformational leader that influence the workplace environment and staffing resources, which may be transferrable to their organization.

Successful completion of the course is defined as in-person attendance for 95 percent of the didactic learning session and a completed course evaluation.

TARGET AUDIENCE:

Nurse managers, nursing coordinators, assistant nurse managers, staff nurses, chief nursing officers, vice presidents of patient care, assistant vice presidents of nursing, administrative directors, directors of nursing, new ONL NJ mentors and mentees, Nursing Workforce Environment Staffing Council (NWESC) members, university deans, nurse educators, nurse researchers and post-acute leaders, nursing home administrators and assisted living administrators.
