In 2010, the Institute of Medicine issued its report, The Future of Nursing, as a result of a two-year initiative to respond to the need to assess and transform the nursing profession. This initiative was funded by the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation, and the report contained several recommendations including that, “nurses should be full partners, with physicians and other healthcare professionals, in redesigning healthcare in the United States.”

Nurses should be ready to assume leadership roles on advisory and governance boards, where policy decisions regarding healthcare are made and where they can impact healthcare reform-related implementation efforts.

OBJECTIVES:

1. Describe the impact nurses can have on healthcare boards
2. Gain an understanding of the skills necessary to be successful board members and the attributes nurses bring to leadership tables
3. Detail the steps required to secure a board position
4. Understand board structure and competencies of board governance
5. Become familiar with financial statement reports at the board level
6. Describe the types of quality and safety data normally portrayed in board-level reporting
7. Discuss how to prepare for and choose which board is right for you.
