Patient-Centered Care Transitions:
Communication Strategies, Best Practices and Technology
To Stay Connected Across the Care Continuum
Webinar – March 3 at 11 a.m. – 12:30 p.m.

Transitions of Care remains an important issue for providers as a key to reduce readmissions, ensure continuity of the care plan and engage patients towards quality outcomes and cost savings.

Whether you have models in place or are developing your transitions of care initiatives, sooner or later, manual practices need to scale for efficiency and streamline for greater impact. Operationalizing your models from manual processes to digital workflow will become inevitable.

During this webinar, two care coordination experts will share case study experiences and tips on how to translate disparate Transitions of Care processes and best practices into an operational model that can be digitized through a variety of technologies.

This webinar will enable you to:

- 1) Cite three specific challenges that arise for most organizations when they want to formalize processes and convert from manual to digital workflows
- 2) Identify top challenges with operationalizing these models at your organization
- 3) Utilize specific recommendations on how to operationalize Transitions of Care and scale them through digital technologies
- 4) Understand the Care Navigator™ solution and its applicability to your organization.
