As champions of policy move forward with changes to curb the opioid epidemic, health care professionals are charged with implementing effective approaches that reflect the particular challenges and opportunities faced by their communities. This does not singularly affect any one region in New Jersey but instead permeates all counties.

This Summit is an opportunity for thought provoking discussion on policy changes at the national and state levels. These changes impact the way providers design the service continuum to ensure evidence-based, high quality and innovative practices to care for the state's most vulnerable residents. The day's agenda will help position your organization as a leader in clinical care and creative partnerships.

This program is made possible with generous support from the UNITED HEALTH FOUNDATION.

OBJECTIVES

- Discuss the state and national mental health agendas and implications on access to care
- Understand the underlying public policy imperatives related to parity
- Describe how regional approaches to care may be applied at the local level
- Review national models of clinical care and discuss their implications for long-term outcomes for individuals seeking mental health and substance use disorder services
- Identify components of provider activities that may be replicable at the local level

TARGET AUDIENCE:

Physicians, c-suite leaders, psychologists, advanced practice nurses, nurses and other clinicians, pharmacists, clinical educators, quality improvement and public health professionals.
