

ONL Research Day: Nurse Leaders Shape Healthy Practice Environments Across Multi-Generations

Date: Friday, June 9, 2017

Time: 7 a.m. – 3:15 p.m.

Location: NJHA Conference and Event Center
760 Alexander Rd., Princeton, NJ 08543

Sponsored by: Organization of Nurse Leaders, NJ

PROGRAM DESCRIPTION

Promoting and advancing practice environments that are grounded in research and best practices are critical to achieving optimum patient, staff and organizational outcomes. Due to the dynamic nature of healthcare delivery, nurse leaders are challenged in fostering practice environments that enhance individual and collective performance, satisfaction, empowerment and organizational commitment.

Extensive evidence exists that describes the clinical nurse practice environment and new research has emerged that targets nurse managers. As such, this program will focus on the nurse manager practice environment and evidence-based strategies to support the critical work of nurse managers.

LEARNING OUTCOME

Based on the latest research, participants will be able to discuss how to inspire all generations of nurses to create and sustain healthy practice environments to support professional nursing practice and provide quality patient care.

WHO SHOULD ATTEND

Nurse leaders who are responsible for patients and staff, including nurse executives, managers, aspiring nurse leaders, supervisors, staff nurses, educators, researchers and nursing faculty.
