Overview:

“Critical care is an all-encompassing specialty with almost limitless boundaries. Critical care involves the use of life-sustaining, high-technology medicine catering to a patient population that extends to both extremes of age. In adult ICUs, the average age is increasing and is now commonly well over 60 years. Although ICUs admitting patients for preplanned brief stays after planned major surgery have very low mortality rates, the rates in adults ICUs among patients admitted “for cause” are generally around 15 percent in developed countries. In recent study of Medicare beneficiaries in the United States, 29.2 percent of patients had been treated in an ICU during the last month of their lives. Currently, most deaths in ICUs are expected, and ICU clinicians regularly face the decision of when to change the focus of treatment from attempting to cure to providing palliative care.” (New England Journal of Medicine, 2013)

This full-day conference will provide education on “hot button” critical care issues and creative strategies to tackle new and emerging critical care challenges.

Learner Outcome:

After successfully completing the course, the learner will identify one innovative strategy to improve care of the ICU patient from the topics;

1. Implementation of a critical care resuscitation unit
2. Nutrition support therapy in the adult critically ill patient
3. Operationalize the ICU Liberation ABCDEF Bundle
4. Palliative Care delivery models for the critically ill
5. Special needs of the obese patient in critical care
6. Moral and ethical issues in the ICU, transferrable to their organization.*

*“Successful completion of the course” is defined as in-person attendance for 95% of the didactic learning session and a complete course evaluation.

Target Audience:

Physicians, intensivists, nurse practitioners, nurses, allied health, registered dietitians, pharmacists, PharmDs, respiratory therapists, physical therapist and public health professionals.
